

ABSTRACT

A security device particularly suitable for a valuables case, having at least one electric power source and alarm system electrically connected to said power source, and comprising at least one light-responsive means that is installed in a valuables case and is energized by the said electric power source upon control and by a change in environment lighting conditions, whereby generating at least one control signal for energizing the said alarm system.

10052714-011802